

MORNING APPEAL.

THE FIELD THIS FALL.

The Republican ticket will have a clean field in Nevada this Fall. There are numerous persons at the present time who occasionally take occasion to ask: "What is the party doing? Why don't it organize?"

The APPEAL is able to inform its Republican readers that the most effective organization is now going on in the Republican party. It is not being done with any parade, nor does the sound of the armorer's hammer float over the field to warn the enemy of preparation. Within the next ten days the most effective party organization ever perfected in Nevada will have been made secure.

The leading powers of the party are in almost daily conference, mapping out the full fight and arranging the forces where the work will be certain and effective. For a few months before the campaign there is always considerable confusion and conflict of interest. All these matters are being harmoniously arranged and so satisfactorily adjusted that when the campaign opens in earnest, the fight will be in such excellent shape that it will be one in which every true Republican will delight to enter.

After the State Convention has completed its labors nothing will be between the party and a victory which will elect the whole ticket.

At the present time there are no dissensions worthy of note in the Republican ranks, while on the other hand the Democratic line is full of gaps and their party leaders are ready to fly at each other's throats. Each day they scan the Western horizon for the faint glimmer of Fair's sack which they expect every moment to rise in undimmed splendor on the Sierra range. But the heavens are dark in that direction and like a pall of despair the fact falls upon the rank and file that they will be obliged to again swallow the nomination of Adams, a bitter pill of misery which has grown more and more distasteful to the Democratic party each campaign. The withdrawal of Theodore Winters when he knew he had a certainty of the nomination has spread a general distrust along the Bourbon line. Winters is an old horseman and knows where to get the inside tips on the race.

The Meadow Lake excitement

The excitement regarding the developments at Meadow Lake, is on the increase. A syndicate of English capitalists are erecting a mill, which, when complete, will cost $150,000, and its projectors are satisfied that they have solved the mystery of how to reduce the ore that has heretofore proved so rebellious. A freight line has been established from Truckee to carry supplies and machinery. Truckee is the entrepot to this promising region. The distance from Truckee via Independence lake is thirty-four miles. The distance from Donner lake by an air line is only sixteen miles. J. L. Lewison and a party of Truckeeites returned recently from a week's tour of inspection. Mr. Lewison says it will be a month at least before a certainty of developing the ore will be reached. Old miners and prospectors are on the qui vive and getting ready to start out. If the process that is to be adopted proves a success Meadow Lake will be the liveliest camp on the Coast.

The publication by the Daily Report, of Governor Stoneman's message before it was delivered to the Legislature, was a mean trick, unworthy of respectable journalism. He, under promise, that it would be withheld, gave it to the San Francisco correspondents a day in advance, that they might mail it and save the cost of telegraphing. The breach of faith on the part of the Daily Report was no newspaper enterprise, it was simply a small piece of work which will make it harder for San Francisco journalists to get news in the future. At Walnut Hills, near Centra, Ill., forty families of farmers, who are discouraged in their fight against cold Winters, hot Summers and cinch bugs, have organized to make a colony on the Pacific Coast.
